Introduction

Ritu Soni Bhagat

Having made her mark in the worlds of television, stage, compeering and advertising, Ritu Bhagat chose to leave the world of glamour behind to focus on her love for teaching English to school students.

'Plain paper has no value but if you write on it, it becomes a document. Life is same you have to decide which kind of document you want to make your life.'

Anyone's life journey is all about trials, struggles, and triumphs. Ritu's life journey is no different.

Early Life

Ritu's father was a sessions judge and her mother was a senior bank officer at the State Bank of India, who laid great emphasis on education. She considers herself very fortunate and is full of gratitude to have such parents who always inspired and motivated her to excel in her studies. Surrounded by working women like her mother and her aunts, Ritu grew up believing in women empowerment and the importance of being self-dependent. As a child, she just wanted to finish her studies as soon as possible and take up a good job and be able to stand on her own feet.

As a student, Ritu was quite active in the extracurricular activities and used to participate in all the programmes and won many prizes too. In school, she was crowned the House Captain and was an active member of NCC. After finishing her school education, Ritu did a short-term course in acting, which was organized by National School of Drama, New Delhi. Post this course, along with pursuing her B.A. degree course, she started teaching in the afternoon shift of a school. Meanwhile, the Delhi office of Doordarshan, the government-run television channel, started a new television programme, titled Gyandeeep and Ritu became its convener.

Doordarshan Beckons

Ritu remembers her days of shooting with the members of Doordarshan team quite vividly. She recalls how once she had to go to a village for the shooting. Her father took leave from his office and accompanied her all the way to the village for the shooting. Her parents, she says, supported and encouraged her to go ahead. One thing that amazes her is her school and college scores always used to be on her father's finger tips. Her parents took care to not differentiate between her brother and her, which was the norm. Ritu particularly praises her mother for progressive and secular views, which shaped her own personality.

A New Turn

Looking to advance her career, Ritu did her post-graduation in Broadcasting Arts from YWCA, New Delhi. She also decided to complete her post-graduation in English. Ritu recounts an incident wherein when she was in the final year of her M.A., the Principal of the Holy Child Convent School asked the H.O.D. of the English department of her college to recommend the name of his best student who could teach students of Class 12. The HOD recommended Ritu's name. Ritu was quite stunned at this opportunity as she was barely out of college herself and here she was teaching 17-year-olds of a prestigious school. Ritu still has the letter of recommendation and treasures it as a precious gem.

Recalling her days of teaching at Holy Child School, Ritu says that on the first and second day of her classroom teaching session, she saw four nuns sitting at the back of the class. She was quite conscious of their presence in the class and assumed that these nuns were there to check her teaching skills. Imagine her surprise when she learned that they were actually her students. Soon, a strong bond was developed between Ritu, the nuns, and other students. The barrier was gone. Even today this incident brings a smile on her face.

Sojourns at DD

Along with her teaching, Ritu continued her work at Doordarshan; she started presenting television programmes that were aimed at the youth. These programmes like Yatra, Delhi Aur Aas Paas, Quiz Time were popular amongst all and with these programmes, Ritu's own popularity also went up. She used to take her students as participants for the Quiz Show.

Additionally, Ritu started acting in plays and skits with artists like Anju Mahendru and Harish Patel for Doordarshan's for New Year's Eve programme. Post the New Year's Eve programme; Ritu discovered that just about anybody and everybody had seen the programme. All her friends and relatives appreciated her work. For many days, she found herself the center of conversation of unknown people in her residential area and even the market. On seeing her, loud appreciative whispers would be overheard mentioning her work and saying, "Yeh ladki 31st December ko TV par aayee thi." Ritu admits that there was the great viewership of the National TV in those days as at that time there used to be only one channel i.e. Doordarshan's National Channel.

New worlds beckon

Along with her teaching and television stints, Ritu also compered a number of stage programmes. Besides inter-state dance festivals, dance and music competitions, Ritu once compered a programme where the renowned Indian classical dancer Madhavi Mudgal was the chief guest.

"I have had dreams and I have had nightmares, but I have conquered my nightmares because of my dreams."

To take the experience of the corporate world, Ritu took up the job of a copy writer at a well-known advertising agency located at the Ansal Bhawan, Kasturba Gandhi Marg, New Delhi. She got the opportunity to work with the stalwarts of advertising agency like Abhinav Dhar and Rashmi Virmani amongst others. This was a great learning experience for her.

In spite of the creative nature of her job and the added perks of working in the studio of the advertising agency, the glamour of the media and an awesome salary, Ritu felt something was amiss in her life. She sorely missed the class interaction with her students and the contentment that she used to get from taking lectures. She realized that she loved the camaraderie and the bonhomie that she shared with her students and that teaching gave her a greater joy than the atmosphere of the mini film world of the advertising agency.

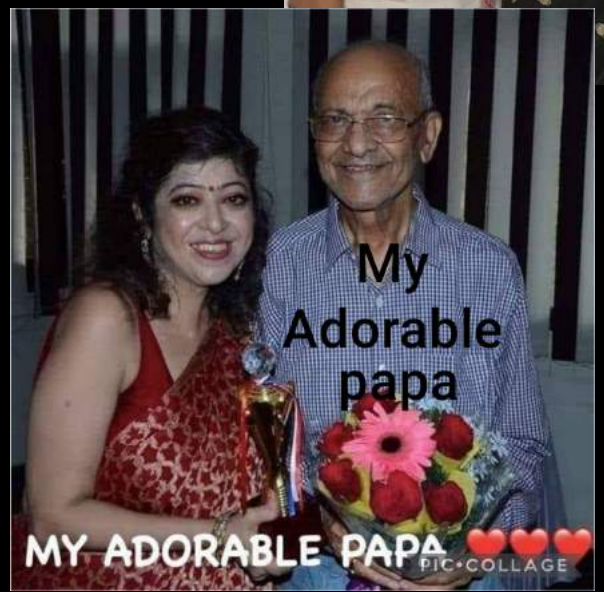

Eventually, she decided to quit this world and return to teaching. When she handed in her resignation letter, many of her seniors spoke to her personally to explain that she had bright prospects in the agency and assured her that she was capable of climbing the ladder of success in the agency. They asked her to reconsider her decision and not resign. This naturally led to an internal conflict for Ritu with her heart and her head. Ritu's brain was telling her to listen to what her seniors and colleagues at the agency were explaining that once she would leave this job, a re-entry in the corporate world won't be easy, whereas her heart was asking her to return to teaching. Ultimately, Ritu decided to follow her heart and she chose the field of education over the corporate world.

Ritu then pursued the B.Ed. degree course and thereafter DAV School as an English teacher. She later joined DPS and taught there.

"Life is what happens to you while we are busy making other plans."

A new turning point

Ritu's initial association with start-ups helped her understand the dynamics of entrepreneurship and the skills needed for successful business operations. Being an educationist, she understood the need for English Workshops for students and that's how she decided to start her own venture as Ritu Bhagat's English Academy.

She had conducted workshops for a long time. Her students were from various prestigious schools like Modern School (Barakhamba Road), DPS (R. K. Puram branch), Montfort, Convent of Jesus & Mary, and St. Thomas School amongst others. Her students have given her fantastic results too scoring from 80 percent to 95 percent. Ritu says that some students joined her course when they were in Class 7 and continued till they completed school in Class 12. One student continued with his classes till he completed his graduation...studying with her for 9 years!!

Adding to her repertoire

Along with her classes, Ritu started writing regularly for the Teenage Digest and also contributed to a magazine, Fusion Life, a lifestyle magazine. She also worked as the Director m- PR & Communication at Fusion Life magazine.)

For a brief period, Ritu started a club for women, where she organized workshops on grooming and image enhancement. These workshops turned out to be quite successful and she invited eminent personalities to conduct them.

Striving to improve herself continually, Ritu did a short-term course in media by Ms. Sheila Chaman, the erstwhile DD newsreader and has recently attended workshops on Communication Skills by Ms. Simran Bhargava, the former editor of Cosmopolitan magazine.

"What takes us back to the past are memories, what brings us forward are our dreams."

Ritu is the brand ambassador for former news reader Salma Sultan's label 'Saree Sanskriti' and also the Brand Ambassador for International Chamber for Media & Entertainment (ICMED).

Ritu's well researched book "English Hinglish" ,published by Rupa Publications has combined education with entertainment and aims to teach and improve the reader's speaking and writing skills.

It is a literary treasure and a testament to the magic of literature and the power of Cinema. English idioms and proverbs have been explained through relatable examples. These well researched examples have been presented in the form of interesting and impactful stories.

The book is one of its kind as the idea is so original that you won't be able to find such a book in India and even abroad.

The out of the box idea has not been copied from anywhere .Its a sureshot and guaranteed way to learn idioms and proverbs. It's not just about newsmakers but in itself a news.

Presently, Ritu Soni Bhagat is focusing on Power Vocabulary Course. Her extensive experience of teaching English to various school students has prompted her to design this innovative and creative course. The course based on her book "English Hinglish" focuses on building advanced vocabulary and contains writing and speaking components.

Ritu feels that a strong vocabulary gives tools to say and write exactly what one means. A good vocabulary makes a person sound smarter, feel more assured and guarantees that he or she will be a better writer and speaker. The larger the vocabulary, the more clearly a person can communicate with others and understand what others are trying to communicate to them. The USP of the course is the use of interactive activities based on current affairs, films reviews, blogs, and others.

"Your Positive Action Combined with Positive Thinking Results in Success."

Ritu Soni Bhagat feels positive about the utility and impact of her vocabulary enrichment course and its contribution to improving people's lives.

On a personal note, Ritu says her life's journey is not complete without the mention of her son Sushant Bhagat. Sushant used to be an active participant in her workshops and she personally taught him English till he completed school.

Apart from her parents, her friends and her mentors, Ritu says that one person without whose support she could not have achieved all this is her husband Sanjay Bhagat. Sanjay, who is a Director at Nokia Telecommunications, is the wind beneath her wings, says Ritu.

"Don't think of the things you didn't get after praying. Think of the countless blessings, God gave you without asking"

Dislikes:

I don't like people being fake, i hate dual faces, I like people who are same both inside & outside. The other thing which i don't like is males who think females are weak. Also I don't like when one woman feels jealous of other.

Likes:

I like being spiritual. I like being positive & spreading positivity & love across the globe. I like nature, studying more on numbers since I am a numerologist, upgrading myself each passing day, learning new things, learning new technologies in market, learning more in the field of occult sciences.
